Terms used in the study

A Migrant, in the global context, is a person who is outside the territory of the State of which they are nationals or citizens and who has resided in a foreign country for more than one year irrespective of the causes, voluntary or involuntary, and the means, regular or irregular, used to migrate. In the EU/EFTA context, a person who either:

- (i) establishes their usual residence in the territory of an EU/EFTA Member State for a period that is, or is expected to be, of at least 12 months, having previously been usually resident in another EU/EFTA Member State or a third country;
- (ii) or having previously been usually resident in the territory of the EU/EFTA Member State, ceases to have their usual residence in the EU/EFTA Member State for a period that is, or is expected to be, of at least 12 months¹.

Human trafficking / Trafficking in persons shall mean

- (a) the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harbouring or receipt of persons, by means of the threat or use of force or other forms of coercion, of abduction, of fraud, of deception, of the abuse of power or of a position of vulnerability or of the giving or receiving of payments or benefits to achieve the consent of a person having control over another person, for the purpose of exploitation. Exploitation shall include, at a minimum, the exploitation of the prostitution of others or other forms of sexual exploitation, forced labour or services, slavery or practices similar to slavery, servitude or the removal of organs.
- (b) The consent of a victim of trafficking in persons to the intended exploitation set forth in subparagraph (a) of this article shall be irrelevant where any of the means set forth in subparagraph (a) have been used;
- (c) The recruitment, transportation, transfer, harbouring or receipt of a child for the purpose of exploitation shall be considered “trafficking in persons” even if this does not involve any of the means set forth in subparagraph (a) of this article;
- (d) Child shall mean any person under eighteen years of age².

Art. 2.1 of Directive 2011/36/EU (hereinafter, the Anti-Trafficking Directive) includes three constitutive elements of this crime: acts, means and purpose. The act is linked to the establishment of control over a person; it consists in the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harbouring or reception of persons, including the exchange or transfer of control over them. The means are the way in which control is attained: the threat or use of force or other forms of coercion, of abduction, of fraud, of deception, of the abuse of power or of a position of vulnerability or of the giving or receiving of payments or benefits to achieve the consent of a person having control over another person. The purpose is the exploitation of the trafficked person.

Irregular migrant, in the global context, a person who, owing to irregular entry, breach of a condition of entry or the expiry of their legal basis for entering and residing, lacks legal status in a transit or host country. In the EU context, a third-country national present on the territory of a Schengen State who does not fulfil, or no longer fulfils, the conditions of entry as set out in the Regulation (EU) 2016/399 (Schengen Borders Code), or other conditions for entry³.

Migrant smuggling, under international law, facilitation of irregular migration, refers to the procurement, in order to obtain, directly or indirectly, a financial or other material benefit, of the unauthorized entry of a person into a Member State of which the person is not a national or a permanent resident⁴ The EU legal framework on smuggling (so-called "Facilitators Package") comprises the following instruments:

- (a) Directive 2002/90/EC defining the infringement of "facilitation of unauthorized entry, transit and residence";
- (b) Framework Decision 2002/946/JHA on the strengthening of the penal framework to prevent the facilitation of unauthorized entry, transit and residence⁵.

Rehabilitation generally refers to programs and initiatives aiming to support victims of trafficking in their path to re-integration into the society upon return to Nigeria. No official definition is available to date.

Executive Summary

The purpose of the report is to analyse completed and ongoing anti-trafficking projects in Nigeria between 2011 and 2019, in order to inform the activities of the INSigHT Action (Building capacity to deal with human trafficking and transit routes in Nigeria, Italy, and Sweden) which started in April 2019 and will conclude in September 2020. The Action has the main aim to build the capacity to deal with human trafficking and secondary routes in Nigeria, Italy and Sweden, with specific attention to trafficked female children engaged in prostitution and boys involved in drug dealing and street begging. The report has a second purpose: that of providing an overview of existing projects that could be useful for stakeholders operating in the field, both in Nigeria and EU countries.

According to EU data (2018), Nigeria was the first among the top non-EU origin countries for victims of trafficking registered in the EU in the period 2015-2016. Nearly half of the victims with Nigerian citizenship were registered in Italy. Notwithstanding, the number of Nigerian arrivals by sea and land into Italy decreased in 2018 (UNHCR). An aspect not to be underestimated is the lack of data relating to transfer and secondary movements within the EU. Yet IOM (2017) stressed that transport through transit countries, such as France and Germany, but also Sweden, Belgium, Austria, the Netherlands, and Switzerland should be under scrutiny. Regarding age and gender, victims registered in the EU in the period 2015-2017 included overwhelmingly girls and women who were trafficked for the purpose of sexual exploitation.

Furthermore, children represent almost one quarter of the registered victims (EU Commission, 2018). Nigeria is still a focus country for the EU and this report aims to contribute to the achievement of the five priorities identified by the EU Strategy towards the Eradication of Trafficking in Human Beings 2012–2016: (a) Identifying, protecting and assisting victims of trafficking; (b) Stepping up the prevention of trafficking in human beings; (c) Increased prosecution of traffickers; (d) Enhanced coordination and cooperation among key actors and policy coherence; (e) Increased knowledge of and effective response to emerging concerns related to all forms of trafficking in human beings.

Numerous projects have been carried out in the last decade to combat human trafficking from Nigeria and other origin and destination countries, but data is fragmented, with the exception of the comprehensive policy review of anti-trafficking projects funded by the European Commission (2016), and little analysis is available of the content of these projects.

The geographical scope of the report includes Lagos and Edo State, but also extends over the wider Nigerian territory. The focus is on the following project areas: awareness raising, capacity building for law enforcement, capacity building for rehabilitation and research. Moreover, a particular focus was on identifying projects targeted to female children and adopting a child- and women-sensitive approach, as well as projects involving some degree of transnational cooperation.

The material was collected from June to September 2019, and it includes: secondary literature (reports and papers), the preliminary gap analysis prepared upon application for funding for the INSigHT Action; insights gathered from the INSigHT Action's two initial events in Brussels and Benin City, contacts with and direct visits to stakeholders in Nigeria. As concerns the analysis, it concentrated on the following aspects: total number of projects, donors, project leaders and project partners, geographical area of intervention, actual activities. Particular attention was placed on identifying and looking into projects targeted to female children and adopting a child- and women-sensitive approach, as well as to projects involving transnational cooperation.

A number of gaps have emerged that still need addressing, in terms of geographical scope, actors/partners' engagement, methodology and adoption of a child- and women-sensitive approach. In part they are in line with the objective and focus of the INSigHT Action's activities, in part they are not, and require a partial re-gearing of the INSigHT Action's activities accordingly. Specific recommendations are provided in this sense.

There has been a significant increase in the number of projects in all four areas, particularly since 2015. As far as capacity building for law enforcement is concerned, an increased number of interventions has been recorded in the last two years. In total, we have identified 39 awareness raising projects, 19 capacity building for law enforcement projects, 24 projects on capacity building for rehabilitation and 22 research projects.

Most awareness raising projects have been carried out in Edo State. Only a few are currently active in Lagos, the INSigHT Action's main target, which is emerging as a geographical area that requires intervention. No project has been identified in Enugu, the second target area of the INSigHT Action's awareness raising activities. A growing focus on rural areas (although in Edo State) has emerged too and calls for the INSigHT Action's attention.

The gap analysis shows that children have rarely been at the centre of attention and even less female children, particularly below the age of 15. With the partial exception of work by GPI, awareness raising activities have failed to address all the relevant levels of awareness raising: most focus has been on the individual level (the potential victims of trafficking), far less has been put on the social network level (family and peers), on the community level, and even less on the institutional level, with little involvement of local authorities, not to mention traditional leaders.

Capacity building for law enforcement is a more recent area of intervention, and relevant projects in this field have been carried out in wider Nigerian territory, with no specific focus on a regional/local context. Four projects are currently based in Edo State and call for coordination. Only three projects have involved transnational cooperation, pointing to an urgent need for investment in this area.

Only a few projects have had a specific focus on women and children, showing that insufficient attention has been paid to these specific populations, which carries the risk of prevention and protection being ineffective and of their collaboration in investigations being scarce. Trainings have been undertaken for judiciary and prosecutors, as well as for police forces and border guards, but they are still limited in scope.

Some topics seem to be still relatively unaddressed and should hence be taken into consideration for the capacity building agenda, including critical issues in: referral mechanisms, the use of SOPs for coordination and law enforcement activities, the protection of victims (such as the scarcity of safe houses for specific target populations). Far more investment is needed on transnational cooperation and far more exchange opportunities are needed among law enforcement officers across ranks and countries to learn about their respective work and foster collaboration.

Capacity building for rehabilitation projects have increased in recent years. A number of projects are ongoing in Benin, with a multiplication of stakeholders, thus calling for coordination, integrated work and extensive involvement of stakeholders in this sense, reaching beyond urban contexts. The importance of more involvement on the side of Nigerian institutions also emerges from the gap analysis. Little evidence has been found of rehabilitation stakeholders adopting target-specific approaches, not to mention child- and women-sensitive approaches.

As it also emerged from the Gap Analysis Meeting, the following critical issues need addressing as far as rehabilitation services more generally are involved: in terms of the need for capacity building on rehabilitation services; trainings are too short and cover limited employment areas; psycho-social counselling support is limited; insufficient capacity is available for returnees accommodation; rehabilitation is not always satisfactory for victims and their needs; capacity gaps are evident in the use of a National Referral Mechanism. Again, limited scope for transnational cooperation has come to light.

Research projects have been mostly conducted by private individuals, often with the support of international intergovernmental organisations and sometimes - although mostly for reports - with some financial support by the EU, IOM, UNODC. To the author's knowledge, only one research project is ongoing at present, and it is a project by PJI aimed at examining the role of recruiters of trafficking. Various pieces of research have been carried out with no specific territorial focus, calling for micro-research to investigate the specificities of contexts to better seize the phenomenon of trafficking in all its complexity.

A number of works have looked at the root causes of trafficking, the theme that has been mostly examined. No specific piece of work has looked at the field of rehabilitation, the main focus of the INSigHT Action's research in Nigeria, although a number of research works do provide some useful inputs on the roles and functioning of agencies working on anti-trafficking in general. Nevertheless, a detailed assessment of the extent to which rehabilitation services are responding at all to victims' needs is sorely needed.

Also, evidence calls for a better understanding of whether girls are effectively becoming less willing to consider opportunities for re-trafficking. Following up on the suggestions of the EC comprehensive policy review of anti-trafficking projects funded by the European Commission (2016), and considering the strategic priority areas of the EU Strategy against trafficking 2012-2016, topics that would need research or further investigation are the following: national referral pathways, engagement of child protection systems, identification of victims of trafficking, prevention initiatives which focus on forms of exploitation other than labour, especially sexual exploitation, which is rarely the focus of the current funded projects on prevention.

Adding to this, research is recommended on various themes, including first and foremost the impact of the Oba of Benin's recent declaration and curse placed on human traffickers and on the system for the protection of children below the age of 15, which are potential targets and/or victims of human traffickers.

Overall, this research has been useful to inform not only the INSigHT Action's activities but also ongoing anti-trafficking projects in Nigeria, as there is considerable fragmentation across territories and stakeholders, and many of them have stressed the need to have an overall picture of what projects are active, where, with what objectives and specific activities. The collected information does therefore provide an overview that is useful both for stakeholders and for researchers to continue exploring projects in more detail. In particular, a tremendous need has emerged for a longitudinal assessment and evaluation of rehabilitation services, but also of the overall system of protection and prevention in Nigeria. While several projects have been completed and others are still ongoing, hardly any evaluation of their impact has been carried out. This would be crucial to avoid duplications and learn from previous experiences. It would however require specific research funding for a further three-year period.

Recommendations for future actions beyond INSigHT

Awareness raising

Ensure awareness raising activities consistently address the individual level of awareness raising (victims and potential victims of trafficking), but also the community, the social network and the institutional levels;

Ensure more involvement of institutions, particularly local authorities, both in terms of funding but also as target of awareness raising activities;

Experiment and adopt innovative methodologies to reach out to target populations most effectively (including social media, tv, etc), by also involvement national and local media as much as possible;

Cover geographical areas that reach beyond Edo State and urban contexts, to reach out to rural areas and States in the country that have not been covered and yet have been interested by evolving trafficking dynamics

Promote a constant monitoring of the evolving transformation of trafficking dynamics across the country, including not only transnational trafficking but also internal trafficking, with attention to the various forms of trafficking (prostitution but also begging, etc.);

Promote and support full detailed longitudinal assessment of the prevention, protection and rehabilitation system in Nigeria, particularly as far as children are involved, as well as of the methodologies (if any) used by NGOs and the various agencies in carrying out their work.

Law enforcement

Increase the scope for transnational cooperation across various ranks of law enforcement;

Ensure more involvement of institutions, particularly local authorities, both in terms of funding but also as target of awareness raising activities;

Ensure capacity building on currently unaddressed topics, such as critical issues associated with referral mechanisms, the use of SOPs for coordination and law enforcement activities, the protection of victims and the availability of safe houses ;

Promote and support projects that place specific focus on the adoption of a children- and women-sensitive approach;

Rehabilitation

Promote coordination across existing projects;

Promote the involvement of institutions;

Improve the capacity of stakeholders in terms of adopting women and children-sensitive approaches;

Address the pending needs for capacity building on rehabilitation services: length of trainings; lack of psycho-social/ counselling support; limited insufficient capacity for returnees accommodation; ineffectiveness of rehabilitation services with respect to target populations' needs;

Improve the scope for transnational cooperation on rehabilitation but also prevention more generally;

Assess the risk of re-trafficking.

Research

Promote projects with a specific territorial focus, thus undertaking micro-research to investigate the specificities of contexts to better seize the phenomenon of trafficking;

Improve the understanding of the extent to which returnees are willing to be re-trafficking;

Carry out specific policy-relevant research on the following topics: national referral pathways, engagement of child protection systems, identification of victims of trafficking, prevention initiatives which focus on forms of exploitation other than labour, especially sexual exploitation, impact of the recent Oba of Benin declaration and curse placed on human trafficker and of any possible declaration on the side of traditional leaders and Obas; systems for the protection of children and children, below the age of 15, as targets of human traffickers.

Provide funding for longitudinal assessment and evaluation of rehabilitation services, but also the overall system of protection and prevention in Nigeria.

Introduction

Human Trafficking is a global challenge attracting international, national and local attention. Yet this phenomenon is particularly relevant for some countries, including Nigeria.

According to the 2018 Global Slavery Index, the country ranks 32 (out of 167) in terms of the highest number of slaves globally, counting a total of 1,386,000. Nigeria was listed as one of the top five origin countries of registered victims of trafficking in the EU between 2010 and 2016. Additionally, Nigeria plays a triple role as origin, transit and destination country.

Particularly with the beginning of the new millennium, numerous projects have been undertaken in Nigeria to fight human trafficking, comprising research, awareness raising, capacity building for rehabilitation services in origin, transit and destination countries, capacity building for law enforcement, as well as transnational cooperation. In spite of increasing commitment to eradicate this form of modern slavery, much remains to be done due to the varying and evolving forms that human trafficking has been taking. As a result, purposeful policies, strategies and actions need constant review. However, projects are rarely evaluated, in part due to the lack of dedicated funding. Hence an updated overview of recent and ongoing projects is missing, and yet it would be crucial to ensure the most effective use of resources, avoid any duplication of actions and encourage collaboration among stakeholders across complementary interventions. Thus, the main purpose of this report is to provide an overview of recent and ongoing anti-trafficking projects in Nigeria in order to identify existing gaps in interventions. This will serve first and foremost the scope of the INSigHT Action, informing and guiding activities by addressing existing gaps. At the same time, it may inform any other stakeholder currently engaged in anti-trafficking in Nigeria, thus promoting relevant and effective interventions, as well as fostering improved collaboration.

The report is structured as follows. First a short overview will be provided of the phenomenon of trafficking from Nigeria, in order to set the report into context. Second, the specific scope and methodology of the report will be laid out. Third, a short introduction of the INSigHT Action will be given, alongside the preliminary Gap Analysis that was carried out upon application for funding for the INSigHT Action. Fourth, an analysis of existing gaps in anti-trafficking projects will be elaborated, to conclude with recommendations for future action.

Section 1

1.1. About the report

This report is part of the INSigHT Action (Building capacity to deal with human trafficking and transit routes in Nigeria, Italy, and Sweden), which is aimed at building the capacity to deal with human trafficking and secondary routes in Nigeria, Italy and Sweden, with specific attention to trafficked female children engaged in prostitution and boys involved in drug dealing and street begging⁶.

The aim of this report is to identify existing gaps in the fight against human trafficking, with respect to the locations and themes of the activities proposed by the INSigHT Action. In particular it aims to identify gaps in current and ongoing projects in Nigeria, particularly in Edo State and Lagos, with reference to the following thematic areas:

- awareness raising
- capacity building for law enforcement
- capacity building for rehabilitation
- research

Another cross-cutting theme, of interest to all these areas, will be explored: transnational cooperation.

The report aims to address the following questions:

- Where are we now with the INSigHT Action, in comparison to current anti-trafficking projects in Nigeria?
- Where do we want to go with the INSigHT Action's activities?
- Which are the gaps that the INSigHT Action should address and how can we address them?

1.2. Methodology

1.2.1. Focus of the report

The geographical scope of the report includes Lagos and Edo State, the specific locations of the INSigHT Action, but stretches also across the wider Nigerian territory. The collection of projects has spanned from 2011 to 2019 and beyond. Specific attention has been placed on projects covering the four thematic areas described above and targeted to Nigerian girls with less than 18 years of age, the main target group of the INSigHT Action.

1.2.2. Data collection

The material used for this report was collected from June until September 2019. Most, if not all, ongoing projects have been identified, considering the multiple channels for collection that have been used, drawing from the following sources:

- secondary literature, including reports and papers, collected through a google search and a googlescholar search, but also the DG database⁷ and other EU/EC websites;
- preliminary Gap Analysis prepared upon application for funding for the INSigHT Action;
- information and insights gathered from two initial events of the INSigHT Action: the Action Launch Event in Brussels on May 7th 2019 and the Gap Analysis Meeting in Benin City on June 10th-11th 2019⁸;
- contacts (via email, phone) to organise appointments and share files/materials with relevant local stakeholders in Nigeria;
- direct visits (in the period August - September 2019): Mrs Mienye Mimi Badejo and Mr. Adenusi Adebayo, FMLE/MRC, 27th August, 2019. Archbishop Olubunmi Okojie road, Ikoyi, Lagos; Sister Bridget of Bakhita, St. Louis Empowerment Network, 15th September, 2019. 11 Leye Omoniyi Close, Boystown bus stop, Iyana Ipaja road, Lagos; Alexander Oturu NCRMI, Awolowo way Ikoyi, Lagos; Mrs Olayinka Elizabeth Adekunle and Mrs Blessing of NCG, plot 952 & 953 Idejo Street, Victoria Island Lagos.

1.2.3. Available information

Most information on the projects was found online, particularly through donors' websites. While the activities were generally indicated, far less information was available on the methodology and sometimes on the specific targets of the activities (if any). Stakeholders have been contacted in order to obtain more detailed information on projects, particularly with reference to the specific geographical area of intervention, the period and the actual methodology - but with little success so far. The general perception, which needs further exploration through the next research phase of the INSigHT Action, is that stakeholders have devoted scarce attention to methodological issues in the first place.

1.2.4. Difficulties of access to data and materials

Difficulties were encountered more generally in contacting stakeholders. Making contact has proved extremely demanding due to the following reasons: local projects rarely have a website; itineraries and schedules for appointments are particularly hard to handle in Nigeria, due to long distances and constant traffic congestion; formal senior approval was required for the delivery of any information on projects; pressure often had to be put on individuals to obtain rapid responses and collaboration on the study. It should also be emphasized that stakeholders showed some form of distrust towards the Nigerian researcher, owing to previous experiences with researchers who did not adhere to confidentiality and anonymity requirements (i.e. through unauthorized use of videos and pictures of victims of trafficking, dissemination of photos and information through Facebook, etc.). Adding to this, stakeholders have been rather reticent to provide financial information and sceptical about collaborating without a mutual benefit. As it also emerged during the Gap Analysis Meeting in Benin, it is worth considering that stakeholders are more likely to be willingly involved in research if they see a direct advantage in their collaboration.

1.2.5. The analysis

Once the material was collected, an analysis has been undertaken by relevant areas: awareness raising; capacity building for law enforcement; capacity building for rehabilitation; research. For each area a list of projects was made, considering that some had multiple components and covered multiple areas. For each project, information was collected on the following:

- total number of projects,
- donors,
- project leader and project partners (if any),
- geographical area of intervention,
- actual activities.

Additionally, particular attention was put into identifying and looking into projects targeted to female children and adopting a child- and women-sensitive approach, as well as projects involving some degree of transnational cooperation. Considerable attention was paid to methodological issues too, but, as anticipated, little information could be found in this sense, suggesting in part, a limited specific capacity on the side of stakeholders.

1.3. A Short quantitative overview of the phenomenon of trafficking in Nigeria

The so-called “migration crisis” was associated with the amplification of the risk of human trafficking, particularly from Nigeria. Indeed, the 2018 Risk Analysis Report of Frontex suggests that although trafficking from this country to Europe has been ongoing for decades, the spike in the number of Nigerian females arriving to Italy (and to Spain), in the period 2015-2017, has brought the phenomenon to light.

1.3.1. Non-EU countries of origin

According to the EU Data Collection Report on Human Trafficking (2018), Nigeria was the top non-EU country of citizenship of the registered victims of trafficking in the EU, in the period 2015-2016, for a total of 2094 people – followed by Albania, Vietnam, China and Eritrea (see table 1). Similarly, for the period 2010-2012, Eurostat found Nigeria to be the top non-EU country of origin of victims – followed by Brazil, China, Vietnam, and Russia.

In May 2019, Nigeria, as well as Niger, Chad, and Cameroon were recorded as the main countries of departure and intended destination for individuals passing through the Flow Monitoring Points established by IOM (see table 2). The main types of flows included short-term local movements (45%) and economic migration of more than six months (36%), followed by seasonal migration (13%) and tourism (6%) (IOM, 2019).

1.3.2. Transit and destination countries

In 2016 alone, 602,000 Nigerians tried to migrate to Europe through the Sahara Desert (PJI, 2019). 27,000 of these migrants died en route. Moreover, as of December 2017, 36,512 migrants were stranded in Niger and Libya indicated Nigeria as their country of origin (IOM 2019). The majority of this group were from Edo state, had started their journey in Benin, to then reach Kano and be smuggled to Niger and Libya.

TABLE 3: REGISTERED VICTIMS OF NIGERIAN CITIZENSHIP BY AGE AND GENDER (2015-2016) (SOURCE FILE: 2018_EU_DATA ON TRAFFICKING, PAG. 96)

Data provided by the EU Commission (2018- table 3) indicated that nearly half (1012 out of 2084) of the victims with Nigerian citizenship registered in Europe were in fact registered in Italy; and nearly one quarter (500 out of 2084) in the United Kingdom. Notwithstanding, UNHCR statistics showed that the number of Nigerian arrivals by sea and land into Italy decreased in 2018 (-5% with respect to the previous year-see table 4) and that Nigeria is no longer in the top five non-EU countries of origin of victims. Nevertheless, the number of people that start a journey from Nigeria to reach Europe remains largely unknown. Data is partial and unreliable and it is questionable whether migration from Nigeria to Europe is actually decreasing or rather changing in its dynamics.

Not to be underestimated is also the fact that the EU Commission Report does not include any data relating to transfer and secondary movements internal to the EU. Yet IOM (2017) stressed that transport through transit countries and by sea to destination countries (mainly Italy, Spain, France and Germany, but also Sweden, Belgium, Austria, the Netherlands and Switzerland) should be under scrutiny. Furthermore, the 2nd EU Report in the Progress of Human Trafficking (2018a) highlighted how internal trafficking, within the territory of Member States, is on the rise. This clearly points to the need of addressing the phenomenon of trafficking in its transnational dimension, but also in view of evolving international and internal trafficking routes, as the INSigHT Action proposes to do.

1.3.3. Smuggling and (different forms of) trafficking

While people leaving Nigeria may start their journey as migrants (both internal or international migrants), forms of smuggling and trafficking have become more evident over time. Smuggling operates along two main lines: flight transportation to Europe, Turkey, or the Gulf; or land smuggling through Niger and Libya and eventually Europe (IOM Nigeria, 2015 – see chart 1). Another route is from Nigeria to Istanbul, Moscow or elsewhere close to the Eastern European border. From there, smuggled migrants try to enter Europe irregularly via land, sea or air (Smits 2001; Okojie, Eghafona, Vincent-Osaghae and Kalu 2003; Prina 2003).

Nigerian migrants mostly rely on smugglers when trying to cross into Libya or Algeria, or when they organise air travels with fraudulent documents (Molenaar and Kamouni-Janssen 2017; Huddleston et al., 2015). Between 2010 and 2015, Nigeria was among the top six nationalities for refusals of entry at EU air borders. Similarly, Nigeria was also among the top 10 nationalities for persons trying to enter Europe with fraudulent documents.

The main airports of embarkation indicated by Frontex (2018) - in its database of irregular entries at EU air borders - included also Lagos (in the top six). Furthermore, in 2016, an estimated 37,554 Nigerian migrants reached Europe by sea, representing 20% of the total flows from the central Mediterranean route (Frontex 2017).

Trafficking follows similar lines to smuggling.

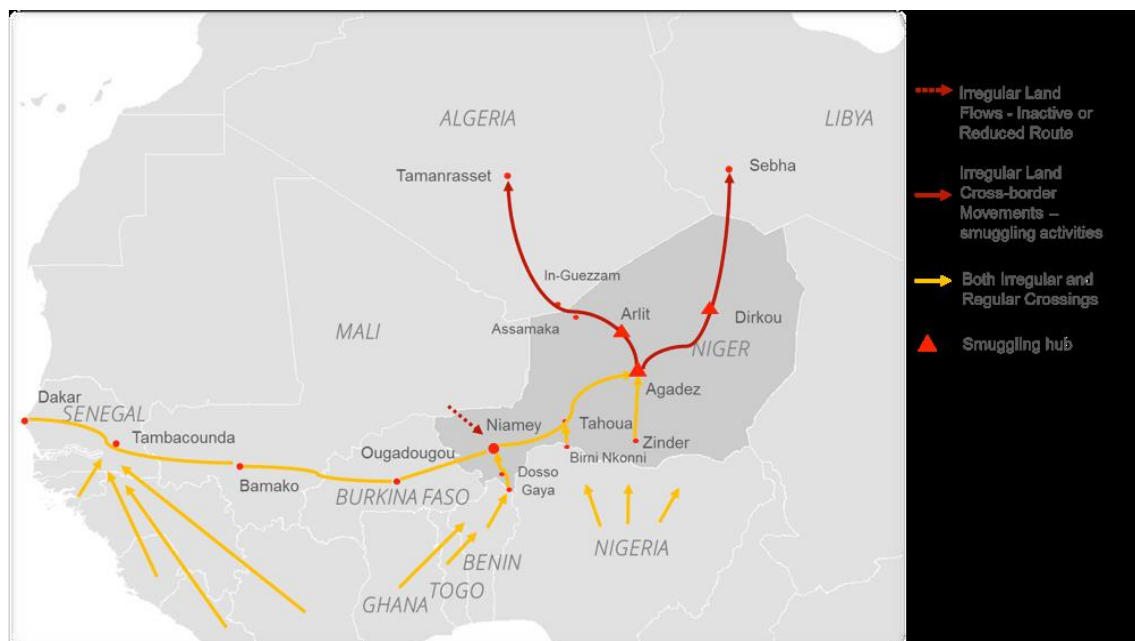

CHART 1: NIGER-LIBYA ROUTE SOURCE: IOM NIGERIA (2015) IRREGULAR MIGRATION BETWEEN WEST AFRICA, NORTH AFRICA AND THE MEDITERRANEAN. PREPARED BY ALTAI CONSULTING. ABUJA. AVAILABLE AT: <https://bit.ly/2mz4HG5>

Around 74% of the registered victims of trafficking in Europe were reported to be of Nigerian nationality and to have been trafficked for sexual exploitation, while less than one in twenty (4%) have been trafficked for labour exploitation and nearly one quarter (23%) for other forms of exploitation (EU Commission, 2018 - see table 5 next page). Concerning trafficking for sexual exploitation, from 2003 to 2017 (2003-2007, 2008-2012, 2013-2017), female victims had grown increasingly aware that they would be forced into prostitution once in Europe (Eghafona, 2018). This calls for a more detailed understanding of the extent to which potential victims of trafficking are actually aware of what trafficking entails, including how long they are expected to prostitute and in which conditions. Also, it calls for an improved analysis of victims', and potential victims' wishes and desires in order to be able to provide effective alternatives to trafficking.

TABLE 5: NIGERIAN VICTIMS BY FORM OF EXPLOITATION SHOWING PERCENTAGES FOR EACH REPORTING MEMBER STATE (SOURCE FILE: 2018_EU_DATA ON TRAFFICKING, PAG. 97)

1.3.4. Victims of trafficking for sexual exploitation: gender and age profiles

Trafficking for sexual exploitation is thought to be most prominent among women – particularly Nigerians, with respect to other Western and Northern African countries. Child trafficking also exists, and it is associated particularly with young boys engaged in agricultural or in-house domestic work, in a context of bonded labour (IOM Nigeria, 2015). This is as far as internal trafficking is concerned. A different picture emerges for transnational movements from Nigeria into Europe (and not only).

Victims registered in the EU, in the period 2015-2017, included overwhelmingly females and specifically females who got trapped in trafficking for sexual exploitation (68%), although the phenomenon included also males (see table 5). Furthermore, children, referring to individuals below 18 years of age, represented 23% of the registered victims (EU Commission, 2018). NAPTIP Factsheet (2018) indicated that that 15 is the average age of trafficked children in Nigeria - a Tier 2 Watch list country on the U.S. State Department's Trafficking in Persons Report. These data call for further research on the varied forms of vulnerabilities they experience, as individuals, as females, as children, as female children.⁹

1.3.5. Traffickers and judgements in Europe

If we shift our attention to the data on traffickers, it emerges that, in the EU28, around three quarters of suspects (78%), prosecutions (75%) and convictions (72%) involved trafficking for sexual exploitation, in the period 2015-2016 (EU Commission, 2018). Among prosecuted individuals, 87% held EU citizenship. Among non-EU citizens, the top five citizenships were Nigeria (87), Albania (43), Serbia (21), Bosnia and Herzegovina (19) and Egypt (18). 3691 court judgments were completed in EU Member States (except 5), in the same period (1994 in 2015; 1697 in 2016), with most judgments in France (1591), Romania (737), Italy (292), Belgium (238) and the United Kingdom (153), thus suggesting a predominant engagement in judgements of France and Romania, with respect to other Member States.

1.3.6. Trafficking cases dealt with in Nigeria

In its 4th Quarterly Report, NAPTIP (2018- see table 6) stated that, at the end of 2018, there had been 1076 cases of human trafficking reported. Of these, only 206 were fully investigated (19,1%), although 823 suspects were identified.

This raises the question of whether capacity building is needed to improve investigations and/or whether any structural obstacle prevents effective full investigations from being undertaken. Looking further at data, NAPTIP (table 7) stated that 50 people were convicted and that the highest number of convictions was associated with the procurement of people for sexual exploitation.

On the other side of the picture there are victims of trafficking. 1,173 of them were rescued: almost half included children (581), the vast majority of whom were female (table 8); Nigerian (1,099), including mainly people from Edo State (146) - followed by Kano (131), Benue (107) - but also other countries, Libya topping the list (101) (table 9). Importantly, while almost half of the victims (535) were assisted by NAPTIP, other agencies worked in partnership with it, including the NIS and Nigerian Embassies, but also a range of other actors, such as the Nigeria Police Force, the Department of State Services, Good Citizens, the Foreign Police, etc.

1.3.7. The way ahead

Attempting to examine trafficking in human beings with quantitative indicators is still very challenging. Data is partial, while definitions and systems are under development. Progress has been made in the collection and provision of information on registered victims and on the engagement of victims and traffickers with relevant organisations in civil society and authorities in state and criminal justice systems. More efforts should be made to provide detailed information on the characteristics of registered victims and their needs and vulnerabilities, but also wishes and desires, in order to combat the phenomenon of trafficking.

More information should also be provided on growing transnational cooperation. Traffickers and related criminal groups reach well outside national borders, meaning that the fight against human trafficking requires more and more transnational cooperation in investigations (EU Commission 2018a). EU agencies and Member States do report an increase in cross-border cooperation. An overview of the impact of these forms of collaboration would be crucial to best plan further investments in this direction. Member States still stress the need to strengthen international cooperation and coordination between relevant intelligence, law enforcement, prosecutorial and judicial authorities in order to intensify the exchange of information and streamline investigations (EU Commission, 2018a).

So far, various external policies, partnerships and dialogues with non-EU countries, including Nigeria, have been fostered to address migration-related themes, including human trafficking. Among these, the Khartoum¹⁰ and Rabat¹¹ processes, the follow up to the Joint Valletta Action Plan, and the joint AU-EU-UN Task Force through its CSDP missions and operations. An evaluation of these initiatives would be much needed.

Cooperation is involved also in assisted and voluntary returns: Nigeria is specifically cooperating with IOM to facilitate assisted voluntary returns from Niger and Libya (EU MPF, 2017). The area of returns and rehabilitation services call for evaluation accordingly, as the INSigHT Action proposes to do, particularly in view of the many initiatives spread across Nigeria, as will be explained in the following sections.

Finally, cooperation has taken the shape of awareness raising actions, training courses and legislative actions involving EU Member States, in collaboration with civil society organisations and EU networks (such the European Judicial Training Network and the EU Agency for Law Enforcement Training CEPOL) (EU Commission, 2018a), thanks to dedicated EU funding (EU Commission, 2018a). This is clearly crucial in terms of raising the capacity of stakeholders in fights human trafficking.

Section 2

2.1. The INSigHT Action

The INSigHT Action aims to address the theme of human trafficking from Nigeria to Italy and to Sweden, with particular attention to less explored emerging trends and target populations and the efficacy of prevention, protection and/or rehabilitation systems in the three countries, with particular focus on Nigerian children.

The general objective of the Action is to:

Increase the capacity of key local stakeholders in the Veneto Region (Italy), Edo State and Lagos (Nigeria) and Stockholm (Sweden) to tackle human trafficking and to deal with its evolving dynamics, trends, forms and modus operandi, with specific attention to female children, while promoting knowledge-based policy making in the respective countries and reinforcing transnational cooperation.

The specific objectives of the Action include:

To produce new gender-disaggregated knowledge on emerging trends, mechanisms and dynamics underpinning the recruitment of victims of trafficking in Nigeria, their transit through secondary routes in Italy and their potential rehabilitation in Nigeria, with focus on children;

To improve key local stakeholders' knowledge and capacity to deal with human trafficking in Italy and Nigeria, and in Sweden as far as transit and secondary movements are concerned, and to promote knowledge-based and gender-aware policy-making, while fostering transnational cooperation;

To strengthen the prevention and protection systems for children, in Italy, Sweden, and Nigeria, through a gender-aware evaluation of their strengths and weaknesses, with specific focus on rehabilitation in Nigeria, the urban security/public order (rather than prevention) approach in Italy and transit/secondary movements in Sweden;

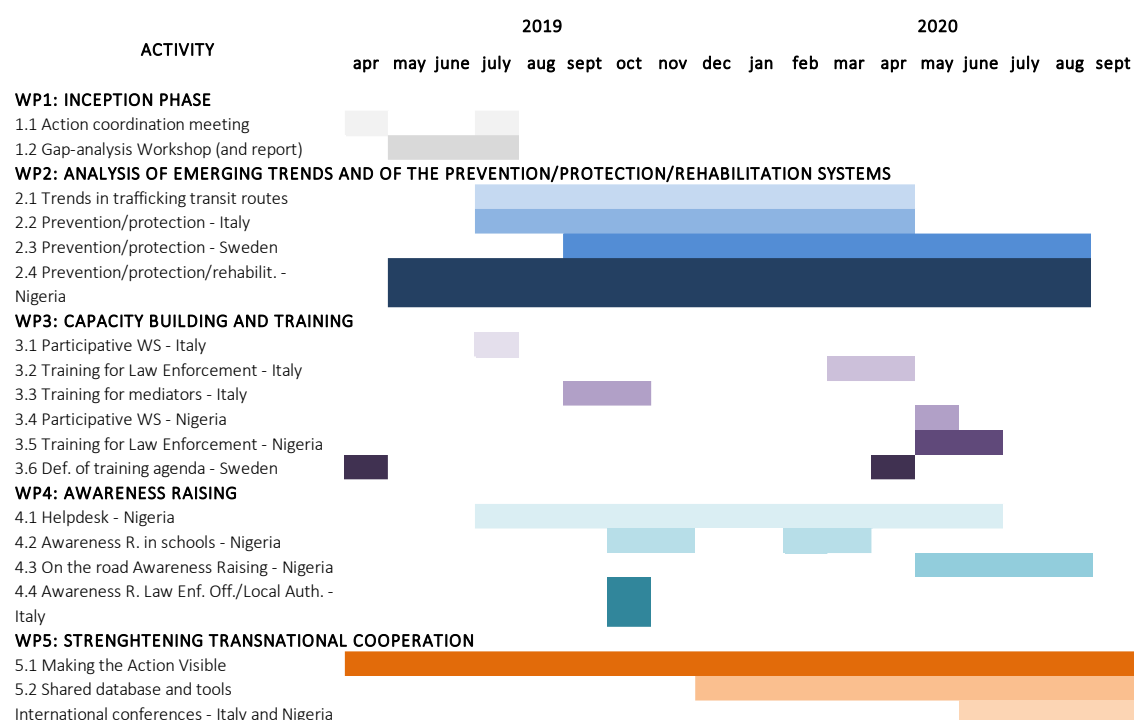

To raise awareness among victim returnees and law enforcement officers on evolving trafficking dynamics, particularly as far as women and children are concerned.

A Gap Analysis of Projects Fighting Human Trafficking in Nigeria (2010-2019)

The Action is focused on four thematic areas: awareness raising, capacity building (particularly for law enforcement and rehabilitation stakeholders), research and transnational cooperation. The geographical scope includes Lagos and Edo State (Nigeria), the Veneto Region and the Brenner area, in Italy, and Stockholm, in Sweden (Europe). The Action is particularly targeted to Nigerian girls of less than 18 years of age.

The specific activities of the Action comprise the following¹²:

WP1 – Inception Phase: Action Launch Event in Brussels and Gap Analysis Workshop in Benin City

These events were organised on May 7th and June 10th-11th 2019 respectively, to present the INSigHT Action to relevant stakeholders (Donors, Representatives of European Commission, Representatives of relevant Embassies and Representatives Anti-trafficking Project Leaders) and to exchange experiences and approaches, while discussing on complementarities and potential synergies. The main aim was to provide preliminary material to complete a detailed gap analysis of current initiatives on human trafficking in Nigeria, while also promoting active networking throughout the Action and beyond.

WP2 – Analysis of Emerging Trends and of the Prevention/Protection/Rehabilitation Systems in the Target Countries

The research team of the University IUAV of Venice, including three Italian Researchers, one Swedish Researcher and one Nigerian Researcher, will carry out ethnographic research (in-depth qualitative interviews and participant observation with outreach units, evaluation units, rehabilitation units and within inclusion projects) in the Veneto Region, along the Brenner route (one of Italy's borders with Austria and towards Northern Europe), in Sweden (Stockholm) and Nigeria (Edo State and Lagos). The research aims to evaluate the systems of prevention, protection and rehabilitation and to explore the extent to which they are equipped to deal with the specific needs of female children and the risks associated with secondary and reverse movements and re-trafficking. A specific part of the research will focus on Nigerian male adults engaged in begging and drug activities in Northern Italy and their potential association with smuggling and/or human trafficking.

¹² For more information see: <https://www.insightproject.net/project/wp-and-activities/> Last access: 23 Sept 2019

WP3 – Capacity Building

Participative Workshop for key stakeholders in the Veneto Region (Italy) A 3-day Participative Workshop will be organised by N.A.Ve to define experimental implementation tools and measures for the protection of Nigerian migrants, with the involvement of all relevant stakeholders (Law enforcement, local and regional authorities, Ministry of Interior and local representations, local universities, trade unions, provincial labour directorates, local and regional health authorities, anti-trafficking project operators). This aims to set a strategic agenda for more effective engagement and collaboration, not only in the first phase of victim identification but all throughout the protection program, thus favouring capacity building and providing opportunities for exchange among stakeholders.

Participative Workshop on Rehabilitation in Nigeria

A 2-day Participative Workshop on Rehabilitation Services will be conducted by PJI, targeting key stakeholders (NAPTIP, NGOs, community leaders, government leaders), in order to share good practices on rehabilitation.

Capacity Building for Law Enforcement Officers in the Veneto Region (Italy), Nigeria and Sweden

A Capacity Building Training Program will be organised by N.A.Ve, targeting junior Law Enforcement Officers and Police Officers in the Veneto Region. The Program will focus on the prevention of human trafficking and the protection of victims, with a gender- and child-aware and medium-term policy approach, while addressing the needs of women and children thoroughly. Furthermore, a 2-day Capacity Building Program will be organised and conducted by PJI, across various ranks of Law Enforcement in Edo State. The Program will include a full-day seminar for Leading Officials and Regional Heads and a full-day Program for trainers of Police Academy and continuing education. In both Programs an expert Law Enforcement Officer from Nigeria and Italy respectively will be involved, and possibly an Expert of the Europol team, with the aim to promote the exchange of experiences at transnational level. As far as Sweden is concerned, the University IUAV of Venice will be responsible for providing recommendations for the Capacity Building Agenda for Law Enforcement Officers.

Training for Cultural and Linguistic Mediators in the Veneto Region (Italy)

A 6-day Training will be organised by N.A.Ve, targeting Cultural and Linguistic Mediators working with migrants. The training will focus on human trafficking, in order to ensure support to victims of trafficking and relevant anti-trafficking stakeholders.

WP4 – Awareness Raising

Awareness Raising in Nigeria: Helpdesk, Training in schools, On the road Campaign

NWA will launch a Helpdesk in Lagos, to reach out to victim returnees and their families and alert them of the dangers of re-trafficking. The Helpdesk will be operated for 12 months, by social workers of the Institute of Social Work, with whom NWA has been collaborating. This aims to promote the institutionalisation of Awareness Raising and contribute to building the capacity of local social workers beyond the Action. In order to complement the efforts of the Helpdesk, two 2-day trainings for teachers will be organised and delivered in selected colleges and secondary schools in Lagos and Enugu, to raise awareness among students on voluntary return and the dangers of re-trafficking and to support teachers in the preparation of ad-hoc Awareness Raising Modules. Furthermore, two Awareness Raising Events will be organised, with the active involvement of the trained teachers. An Itinerant Awareness Raising Campaign will also be organised in Lagos and Enugu, geographical areas that have been less covered by Awareness Raising Activities in Nigeria. This aims to reach out to victim returnees during the off-school summer months and in hard-to-reach locations.

Counter-narratives on Nigerians in the Veneto Region (Italy)

An Awareness Raising event, targeting Law Enforcement Officers and the wider society was carried out in the Veneto Region, during the European anti-trafficking week, in October 2019. It will focus on the conditions of vulnerability of Nigerian migrants trapped in trafficking circuits in Northern Italy, with the scope to counter widespread stereotypes against Nigerian nationals which often translate in demands for increased police interventions.

WP5 – Making the Action visible and strengthening Transnational Cooperation

Associazione 2050 have set up a dedicated INSigHT Action website that will be used to upload all the materials that will be produced throughout the Action, in order to promote dissemination. A specific part of the Action website will provide an online interactive searchable database, including certified organisations in Nigeria, Italy, and Sweden that are involved in anti-trafficking activities. The target users of the database will be first of all the Action applicant and co-applicants and their partners (beyond the Action). Its function will be to favour the sharing of good practices, to facilitate the search for certified partners for effective transnational cooperation.

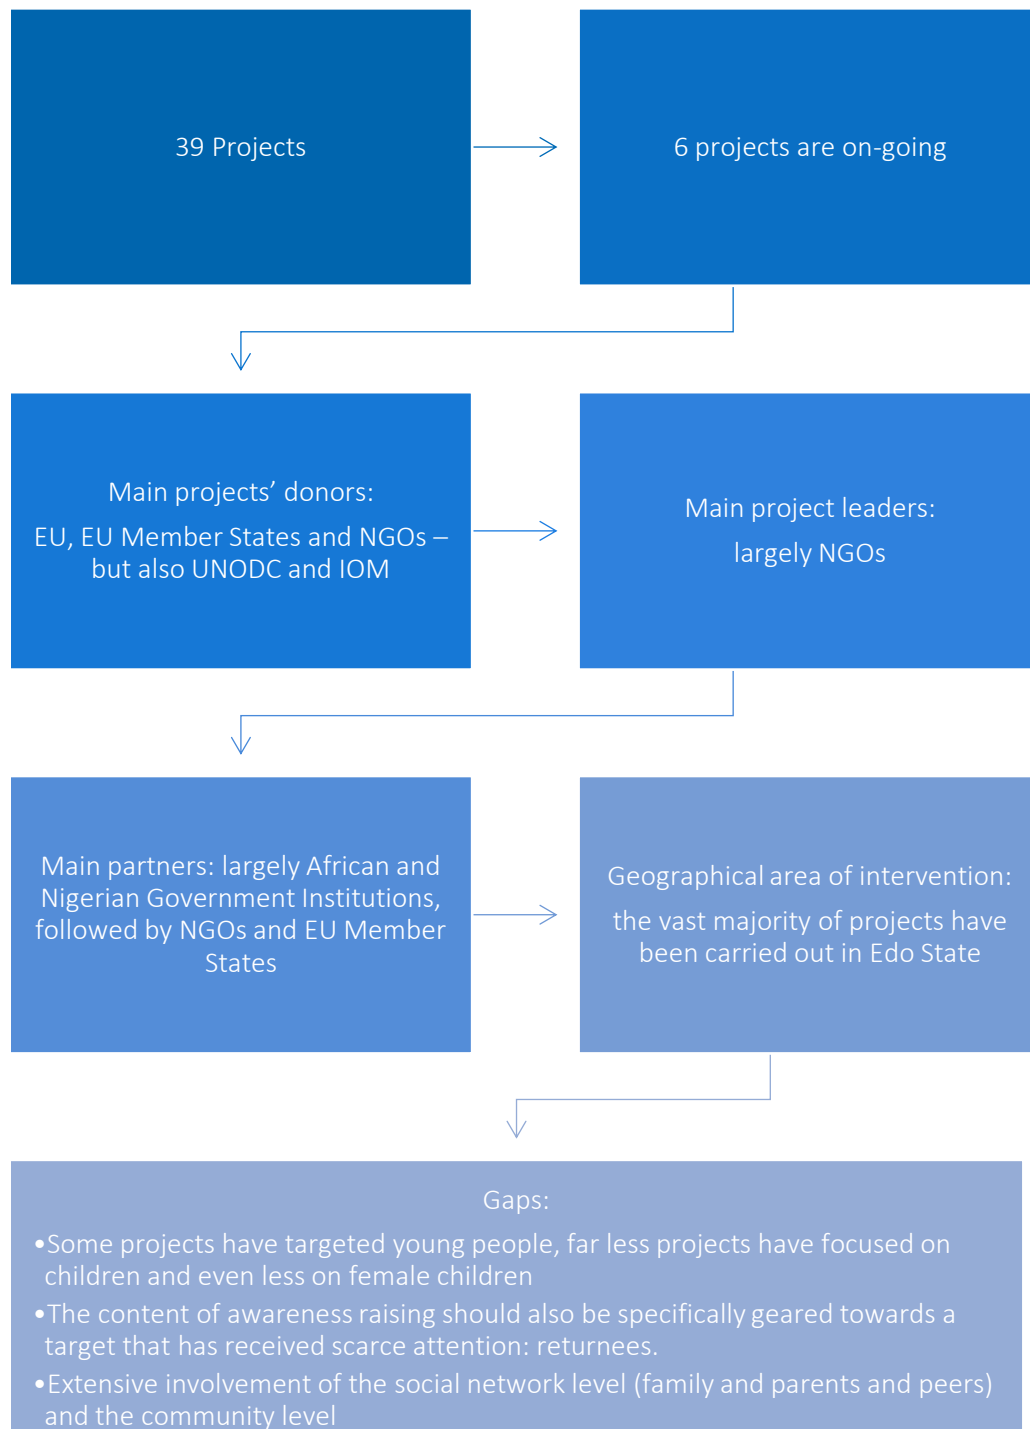

Section 3

3.1 Gap Analysis of current and ongoing anti-trafficking projects in Nigeria (2010-2019)

Following the collection of information about ongoing and other completed projects, we have carried out an analysis based on the following information: total number of projects, donors, project leaders, project partners, geographical area of interventions, specific focus on children and female children, specific methodology adopted. The analysis is followed by recommendations for future actions and interventions, beyond the INSigHT Action.

3.1.1 Awareness Raising Projects

Main findings

We have identified a total of 39 Awareness Raising Projects.

There was an evident increase in the number of Awareness Raising Projects between 2014 and 2017. At present, six projects are known to be ongoing, two of which have been going on for more than three years, and one of which started earlier than 2000.

Donors include the EU, EU Member States and NGOs. For some projects (three), funding has come from UNODC or IOM. Funding from a Nigerian government institution is only evident in one project, stressing the lack of direct investment in awareness raising. In a few cases (two), funding has also come from the private sector, and in one case from a Pan-African organization. Project leaders are largely NGOs. African and Nigerian government institutions are also relevant leaders (12 projects). This points to considerable engagement on the side of NGOs, but also of African and Nigerian government institutions, which should in principle favour the ownership of projects. On their side, a majority of the partners are African and Nigerian government institutions, followed by NGOs and EU Member States. A less prominent role as partners is played by religious organisations and trade unions. In this sense, as it also emerged at the Gap Analysis Seminar in Benin, the INSigHT Action awareness raising activities should strive to facilitate the involvement, where feasible, of both traditional leaders and trade unions.

Concerning the geographical area of intervention, the vast majority of projects have been carried out in Edo State. Nine projects have been carried out across Nigeria and other African States, but with no specific territorial target. Single projects have been carried out in Abuja, Cross River. Only a limited number of projects have been carried out in Lagos and particularly in the following areas: Ipaja, Badagry, Oyingbo, Owode-Apa, Seme, Epe, Lagos Island, Ikeja, Ikorodu. Hence there is ample scope for awareness raising activities in Lagos, the geographical focus area of the INSigHT Action's awareness raising activities. No project is under way in Enugu, the second geographical focus of the INSigHT Action's awareness raising activities, hence awareness raising activities here are particularly relevant.

Four projects have been carried out in rural areas in Edo State (i.e. the RicosMigration project, the Human trafficking prevention among school children project, the Not for sale Campaign) - while again the INSigHT Action's awareness raising activities will take place in Lagos and Enugu. Yet it is important to acknowledge the increasing attention paid to non-urban/peripheral areas, underlying the need to work in such contexts. As NWA has planned an itinerant campaign including also more peripheral, hard-to-reach areas, contacts have been made with one of the projects with a rural focus, the RicosMigration project, in order to learn from existing experiences in rural contexts, including the adoption of specific strategies such as the use of migration documentary movies, of leaflets and of a style of communication tailored to young audiences, in addition to the involvement of peer-educators, such as members of NYSC Corps.

As anticipated, six projects have targeted Lagos. Two projects have been completed: Prevention of irregular migration and trafficking in persons in Nigeria by IOM and Promoting better management of migration in Nigeria by WOCON. The former was carried out in secondary and tertiary schools, while the latter was carried out in the open air, in markets and motor park areas, contexts that are both relevant to the INSigHT Action. Hence more information should be retrieved by NWA on these completed projects and their outcomes to understand whether further work would be needed in the same secondary and tertiary schools.

Four projects are still ongoing, including the TIPSOM, the Awareness Campaign on Human Trafficking, the Bakhita St. Louis project, the I am Priceless Campaign. To the author's knowledge, none of the ongoing awareness raising projects in Lagos involve itinerant campaigns, as in the case of the INSigHT Action's awareness raising activities. Regarding the targets, the Awareness Campaign on Human Trafficking targets women but not female children, as in the INSigHT Action's activities. Children are a priority target for the 'I am Priceless' Campaign, but rather than on the children themselves, the campaign focuses on families and communities. Some overlap may exist with the Bakhita St. Louis project under way in secondary schools, thus calling for coordination.

Looking beyond the projects in Lagos, other relevant elements and suggestions for the INSigHT Action have been identified in projects focusing on geographical areas other than Lagos, as will be described.

The Counter Trafficking Initiative by IOM and NAPTIP has paved the way for the establishment of a social media network called Partners Against Trafficking and Irregular Migration (PATIM) aimed at facilitating information and knowledge sharing among state and non-state actors for effective coordination of all awareness activities. NWA should engage with the PATIM network to ensure maximum coordination and impact of the INSigHT Action's awareness raising activities.

The Missing Step project has adopted an innovative awareness raising methodology, consisting in the use of mini-series to raise awareness across the wider territory of Nigeria with a medium that may speak and appeal to different audiences. The use of mini-series is certainly a good practice to consider for future actions, although the INSigHT Action does not have sufficient resources to advance innovation in this direction.

NWA and Associazione 2050 should contact M4D since collaboration with a local stakeholder will be needed for the production of some of the planned awareness raising videos, and M4D has been developing specific experience on anti-trafficking projects. However, as pointed out during the Gap analysis meeting in Benin, M4D have limited financial and human resources, hence the feasibility of the collaboration needs confirmation.

Some projects have targeted young people/youth, children and women, in some cases with a specific methodology which is worth considering to ensure the INSigHT Action's activities are most effective with respect to their target (i.e. projects by UNODC and WOCON, the DDF project, the Cinema Arena project, the RicosMigration project, the Packing Project, projects by NAPTIP and GPI).

What emerges from these projects is that while some have targeted young people, far less have focused on children and even less on female children – with the exception of projects by GPI and Bakhita St. Louis. Hence female children should be the main target of the INSigHT Action's awareness raising projects, following the objectives stated by the INSigHT Action. It should also be noted that projects targeting children have covered Edo State and Abuja.

Should female children be the main target of the INSigHT Action's awareness raising projects, adequate communication must be ensured. As it emerged from the Action Launch Event in Brussels (particularly the Missing Step Project) and the Gap Analysis Meeting in Benin (particularly the work by Save the Children), language and content should be accessible. It is not sufficient to talk about the dangers of migration. The ECOWAS free movement space has educational and employment opportunities that should be promoted. Also, awareness raising should work towards a change in attitude and behaviour of potential victims of trafficking – although this requires long-term projects.

The content of awareness raising actions should also be specifically geared towards a target that has received scarce attention: returnees. In fact, the Helpdesk in Lagos was specifically conceived with this in mind. It would be worth involving returned girls as messengers in awareness raising activities, but with some notes of caution: as it emerged during the Gap Analysis Meeting in Benin with reference to IOM's Migrants as Messengers project, returned girls are not always willing to collaborate.

Another aspect is worth noting. While targeting children is clearly essential for awareness raising projects, efforts should be made to include the social network level (family and parents and peers) and the community level, as suggested by GPI at the Gap Analysis Meeting. As Expertise France further stressed at the Launch Event Meeting, the need to involve institutions is also evident. Building on this suggestion, NWA has been working towards re-gearing its awareness raising activities to achieve greater involvement of local authorities in Lagos, starting with an event last July in Kosofe Local Government Area of Lagos state. In fact, the analysis presented here has also shown that, with a few exceptions (Human Trafficking Prevention Project), local authorities have not been involved in awareness raising activities, nor have social workers.

As it emerged from the Action Launch Event in Brussels, it is crucial to ensure this report informs a clear communication strategy for each awareness raising activity. NWA and Associazione 2050 will be revising the existing strategy accordingly, with the support of IUAV. The communication strategy should consider dissemination of awareness raising materials through as many channels as possible, including <https://www.infomigrants.net>, as suggested during the Action Launch Event in Brussels, as well as the Aware Migrants' project website and the PATIM network. Efforts should also be made to reach out to social media platforms that are appealing to younger people and children.

3.1.2 Capacity Building for Law Enforcement Projects

Main Findings

We have identified a total of 19 Capacity Building for Law Enforcement Projects. There has been an evident increase in capacity building for law enforcement since 2018 with four ongoing projects in Benin and more widely in Nigeria. Three long-term projects were carried out in Nigeria.

Donors have included mostly EU agencies, but also the US Federal Government, Ministries of various EU countries and international organisations. Project leaders have largely included EU agencies and international organizations; to a lesser extent, EU Member States and African/Nigerian Government Institutions. Partners have included first of all NAPTIP, which has been the leader and/or partner in eight projects (slightly more than a third). Various other Nigerian agencies (NIS, NPF, DSS, NDLE, NACTAL, NPC, NBS, INL, NCA, WACAP) have been involved in two projects that are now finished: Promoting Better Management of Migration project, Basic Skill for NAPTIP Counsellors and the Reintegration of Migrants project. Both focussed on enhancing the capacity of law enforcement officers. Only three projects have involved transnational cooperation in their capacity building activities: TIPSOM (finished in 2016), which involved a transnational forum of discussion of research findings with destination and receiving countries; the PROMIS project (carried out in 2018), which involved facilitating mutual legal assistance between Nigeria and Italy and the deployment of African experts in other countries; the Multi-stakeholder cooperation against human trafficking project (finished in 2012), which involved strengthening capacity in both Nigeria and Europe and enhancing operational cooperation among law enforcement, judiciary and victims services.

Concerning the geographical area of intervention, it has emerged that the vast majority of projects are targeting Nigerian law enforcement more generally, while four projects have been carried out in Edo State specifically. This calls for coordination with the leaders of the projects carried out in Edo State in order to learn from previous experiences, and for coordination with the leaders of ongoing projects to make sure pending gaps are addressed as much as possible in a complementary way.

Only the following two projects have a specific focus on women and children, thus pointing to the fact that little attention has been paid to children- and women-sensitive approaches: Basic Skills for NAPTIP Counsellors and the Reintegration of Migrants and TIPSOM projects (ongoing). We recommend PJI should make contact with project leaders in view of the training to law enforcement officers, in order to learn about their agenda and address any pending gaps in capacity building, whilst also cooperating, where possible in their respective activities, to ensure solid capacity building with a specific focus on women and children and their respective vulnerabilities. This is crucial for an approach that puts victims “at the centre”, with the objective of ensuring their protection and, as a result, encouraging their collaboration in investigations.

Specific training for judiciary and prosecutors has been carried out in three projects: Multi-stakeholder cooperation against human trafficking project (completed in 2012 across Nigeria); Strengthening the fight against TIP, which trained NAPTIP investigators and prosecutors (completed in 2017 across Nigeria); the PROMIS project, which worked towards facilitating mutual legal assistance between Nigeria and Italy, with an enhancing cooperation - completed in 2018). Two trainings are still ongoing: Strengthen the capacity of state and non-state institutions project, which is training officers of the National Judicial Institute in Edo State (ongoing in Lagos and Edo State); OCWAR-T, which is providing support in terms of networking and training of prosecutors and judiciary in various countries including Nigeria (ongoing across Nigeria); the UK Home Office support to the Joint Task Force project that has been providing equipment to courts to fast track prosecution (ongoing in Edo State).

Specific capacity building training for the national police force has been carried out in two projects: Basic skills for NAPTIP Counsellors and the Reintegration of Migrants project (completed in Edo State and Lagos); the Promoting Better Management of Migration (completed in 2018 across Nigeria). Three project are still ongoing: the Strengthening the fight against TIP project (ongoing in Edo State); the Strengthen the capacity of state and non-state institutions project (ongoing in Lagos and Edo State); the TIPSOM project (ongoing in Lagos, Edo, Delta and Sokoto); various activities of the Italian Ministry of Interior (ongoing). Contacts have been made with Representatives of the Italian Ministry of Interior to ensure collaboration and their involvement in the trainings that will be organised by the INSigHT Action.

Specific trainings have been undertaken also for border guards (in 2013) and a recent project by Frontex has resulted in the publication of a specific manual.¹³

The list of training projects reported above confirms that there are some ongoing trainings for border guards, as well as for judiciaries, prosecutors and national police forces. What appears as the most important action is to further promote transnational cooperation through active exchanges between Italian and Nigerian law enforcement officers, in order to share knowledge and experience. Rosen is certainly to be contacted to identify African experts that can be engaged in trainings in Italy, while other European experts can be identified through EUROPOL (as suggested by representatives of the Euromed IV project).

As far as the content of trainings is concerned, focus has been put on a few main topics: supporting free movement in West Africa and reinforcing the implementation of the ECOWAS Free Movement Persons Protocol (the Multi-country sensitization and the DDF projects, completed in 2015 and 2017); operating cooperation protocols for the sharing of information within bilateral agreements (Appui à la Lutte contre la Traite project, ongoing across Nigeria); building capacity on indicators of human trafficking (Blue Campaign, ongoing); managing borders (the UK Home Office and the Mieux projects, ongoing).

Among these topics only one is included in the preliminary agenda for the INSigHT Action's law enforcement training: the recognition of human trafficking indicators. In this sense we recommend PJI should get in touch with the Blue Campaign to discuss about their potential involvement.

As it also emerged at the Gap Analysis Meeting in Benin, some topics seem to be still relatively unaddressed and should hence be taken into consideration for the INSigHT Action's training agenda, including the following: critical issues associated with referral mechanisms; critical issues associated with the use (if any) of SOPs for coordination and law enforcement activities (as a result of the Promoting Better Management of Migration project); critical issues in the protection of victims (such as the scarcity of safe houses where witnesses can be protected during pending judicial proceedings).

Following the analysis of ongoing projects it also seems that further attention should be placed on the topic of the coordination among law enforcement officers and the judiciaries, and possibly the Investigation Task Force that should be in the process of being established through the Organised Crime Project).

From a methodological point of view, the analysis, as well as the insights from the Launch Event and the Gap Analysis Meeting, point to the need to “train the trainers”. This has been experienced as the most effective approach to training for police forces in particular. Moreover, as it was stressed during the Action Launch Event in Brussels, rather than on training, the focus of work with law enforcement should be on facilitating and promoting transnational exchanges which, as it also emerges from the analysis, is a very much needed element of capacity building.

3.1.3 Capacity Building for Rehabilitation Projects

Main findings

We have identified a total of 24 Capacity Building for Rehabilitation Projects.

Only a few projects have been running for more than three years, including the Bakhita St. Louis project and the project by the COSUDOW and by Idia Renaissance (since 1999). More recent and yet long-term projects include those of GPI, of the DRC, of the Federal Government of Nigeria (Migrant Resource Centres). Apart from the projects of the COSUDOW and of Idia Renaissance, no rehabilitation projects were underway before 2013, with the exception of the projects by GPI. Most projects took off very recently, in 2017 or 2018.

A number of projects are ongoing and taking place in Benin. This points to a multiplication of stakeholders engaging on rehabilitation, thus suggesting the need for integrated work and collaboration, which is the primary goal of the rehabilitation workshop planned by PJI as part of the INSigHT Action. As part of the rehabilitation workshops planned by the INSigHT Action, we recommend PJI should involve all stakeholders that were invited to the Gap Analysis Seminar in Benin, but also ensure the involvement of those who were not present to ensure the most extensive participation.

Project donors include EU institutions and EU Member States governments, as well as international and intergovernmental organisations. Much more limited is the engagement of Nigerian institutions as donors, suggesting that investing in rehabilitation is not a top priority. Project leaders include largely Nigerian local NGOs but also Nigerian Government institutions. Only in a few cases leaders are international humanitarian organisations or international and/or intergovernmental organisations. Partners include mostly international and intergovernmental organisations, but also humanitarian organisations. Much more limited is the engagement of NGOs. This points to the need to carefully plan and encourage the involvement of local NGOs in the INSigHT rehabilitation workshop, as to ensure it is an opportunity to effectively promote collaboration and improved support to returnees.

Ensuring extensive participation means also there should be a direct benefit for participants, including the creation and sharing of tools. The participants of the Gap Analysis Seminar in Benin were very thankful for the first ever Gap Analysis meeting in Benin. Many of them also stressed the expectations that the resulting network would be sustained. In this sense, PJI took up the challenge and created a list of participants with their contacts, thus also creating a concrete tool for networking and collaboration. A possible tool to be developed during the rehabilitation workshop would be an updated list of rehabilitation services to be uploaded on the INSigHT website, with due certification of the services provided. We recommend PJI should explore the content of the planned platforms of the Salvation Army and the EU-IOM Joint Initiative for Migrant Protection and Reintegration to avoid any overlap of information.

The recent STEP project could provide some insights in this direction: tools made available on the website could provide material to start discussion on a transnational level.

When organising the rehabilitation workshop, we recommend PJI should ensure full attention is paid to strengthening coordination not only with urban-based rehabilitation projects but also with any project reaching out to rural areas (such as those by the COSUDOW, the Oba Ewuare II Foundation and some projects by NAPTIP), considering they provide a crucial service for more remote and less accessible areas.

We also recommend PJI should ensure full attention is paid to increasing the capacity of stakeholders in terms of adopting children- and women-sensitive approaches, as part of the INSigHT Action's objectives. In this sense, PJI should draw from the experience of stakeholders that have developed specific competence in this field, including the project leaders of TIPSOM and of the projects by Idia Renaissance, COSUDOW, NAPTIP and UNODC, without underestimating the experience cumulated by the staff of PJI.

We further recommend PJI to take into consideration the inputs collected from the Gap Analysis Meeting in Benin, in terms of the needs for capacity building on rehabilitation services:

- trainings are too short and cover limited employment areas (as testified by IOM, ETAHT and Idia Renaissance) and start-ups often fail (as testified by NAPTIP);
- psycho-social/ counselling support is limited (as testified by IOM, ETAHT and Salvation Army);
- insufficient capacity is available for returnee accommodations (as testified by Salvation Army) and a lack of shelters for male returnees is evident (as testified by ETAHT);
- rehabilitation is not always satisfactory for victims and their needs (as testified by various stakeholders);
- capacity gaps are evident in the use of a National Referral Mechanism (as testified by various stakeholders).

As one of the INSigHT researchers, based in Nigeria, will be working specifically on rehabilitation projects, we recommend they should coordinate as much as possible with PJI to ensure the mutual benefit, particularly in networking activities to involve stakeholders. The research can be used to inform the agenda of the workshop, while the workshop can provide insights to further evaluate the current state of rehabilitation projects in Benin. As it has been emerging from the analysis of rehabilitation projects, there is currently limited scope for transnational cooperation: projects are either targeted to EU Member States or Nigeria. Hence, we recommend PJI should ensure this issue is addressed, starting with the involvement of INSigHT partners, for example by inviting Italian and/or Swedish stakeholders that deal with rehabilitation and returns to attend the rehabilitation workshop.

3.1.4 Research Projects

Main findings

We have identified a total of 22 Research Projects, with an evident increase in 2015 and, later, in 2018.

For the time being, only one project is ongoing, and it is a research project by PJI aimed at examining the role of recruiters of trafficking. Two projects have recently been completed (Obarisiagbon and Ijegbai, 2019 and Ohonba and Eghafona, 2019). These explored public awareness and knowledge on the legislative framework against trafficking in Benin and the impact of transnational remittances from trafficking. Similarly, the work by Afaha (2013) examined remittances through a household survey and a secondary sources dataset.

Research projects have been mostly conducted by private individuals, often with the support of intergovernmental organisations and sometimes - although mostly for reports - with some financial support by the EU, IOM, and UNODC. Funding from Nigerian government institutions is only evident for the Research Workshop organised by ETAHT, indicating that direct investment in human trafficking research is not a top priority for Nigerian institutions.

Various pieces of research have been carried out with no specific territorial focus (except for research in Upper Sokponba, Oredo, Egor and Ikpoba-Okha Local Government in Edo State and projects in Abuja, Lagos, Ibadan, Benin, Ekiti and Oyo states). Building on his review of more than 100 research works, Weitzer (2014) stressed the need to carry out micro-research in specific contexts. In this sense, in order to address territorial gaps in current research, we recommend the INSigHT Action's research team should continue focussing on the specific context of Edo State. As suggested by the RicosMigration project (2018), we also suggest that the INSigHT Action research should reach beyond the urban context of Benin to cover rural areas that have been far less explored (see also the work of Obi 2018).

A number of works have looked at root causes, the theme that has been mostly examined (Jobe 2009; Adepelumi 2015; Adepelumi, 2015; Olufunke, 2016; Manbe 2016; Olufunke 2016; University of Bedfordshire 2018). This was also one of the main topics of the ETAHT's Research Workshop. The research group at the University of Bedfordshire, besides examining the root causes, also explored the vulnerabilities to and resilience of the victims of human trafficking in Nigeria (as well as Vietnam, Albania, and the UK).

Other topics of research have included the following: recruitment mechanisms and organisation of Nigerian networks in Europe (IFRA, 2016); bilateral cooperation between the UK and Nigeria (Ikeora, 2018); the impact of migration of Nigerian women on the economy and on families generally (Okojie, 2018); the role of Purray boys (Iziengbe, 2017).

Concerning the field of rehabilitation, which is the focus of the INSigHT Action's research in Nigeria, no work has dedicated specific attention to it, although some research does provide useful inputs that are worth considering. Manbe (2016) conducted research on the causes of human trafficking by examining the role of various agencies and NGOs, while Okojie, in an earlier study (2005), investigated the practices of various stakeholders in addressing the problem of trafficking in women for sexual exploitation in Nigeria, thus providing some useful background from a longitudinal perspective.

Further inputs for the INSigHT Action's work can be drawn from research by Iziengbe (2017), from the Packing Project, and from the work by Eghafona (2018). The former includes interviews with girls and women who have been involved in sex trade in Nigeria, Africa and Europe. The latter details the situation of children and women migrating from Nigeria (including some parts of Edo State) to Europe – and crosses empirical data collected in France. The third comprises interviews to victims of trafficking in three different phases spanning from 2003 to 2017, and it explores victims' experiences and need for effective rehabilitation services. We recommend the INSigHT Action's research team should follow up on these results, to address in more detail to what extent rehabilitation services have been responding to victims' needs. Additionally, we recommend further inputs should be gained on any changing circumstances that, as stated by Eghafona (2018), have resulted in girls becoming less willing over time to consider opportunities for re-trafficking.

Generally speaking, there seems to be a scarcity of research on both rehabilitation and trafficking in Lagos State, with the partial exception of the work by IFRA (2016). While this is not the territorial focus of the INSigHT Action's research work, we recommend the INSigHT Action's research team gather some inputs, where possible, about rehabilitation projects in Lagos too, particularly by referring to the participant observation activities that will be carried out by NWA in Lagos – and it has already been done. This could bring to light hypotheses about changing dynamics in terms of trafficking, in consideration of the Oba of Benin's recent declaration and curse placed on human trafficking, which - as suggested by some participants in the Gap Analysis Meeting - may have pushed it towards Lagos.

A last remark must be made. Various reports focusing on data, patterns and flows of trafficking at global, regional and national levels have been produced by UNODC (since 2015), the EC (Report on Human Trafficking - since 2015 and Progress Reports made in the fight of human trafficking), Frontex (Risk Analysis on border crossing - since 2014), IOM (World Migration Report - for more than a decade), the US Dept. of State (Trafficking in Persons Report) and specifically on Nigeria by NAPTIP (since 2012). Adding to these, EASO published a specific report on sex trafficking from Nigeria (2015), examining the modus operandi of trafficking and the situation of victims of trafficking returning to Nigeria; the EC compiled a study with a review of funded anti-trafficking projects (2016), and the FMM involved interviews with key informant migrants across Niger, Mauritania, Senegal and Nigeria to support migration data management, border management, labour migration and combating trafficking in persons in West Africa (2015).

Based on the analysis of research projects in Nigeria, we recommend the INSigHT Action's research team should focus on the evaluation of the strengths and weaknesses of rehabilitation services in Edo State. However, the following issues/factors should be taken into consideration, at least as potential hypotheses to be addressed:

- role of Odionwere - the oldest men in the community of Benin - and the extent to which they undermine or support the fight against human trafficking;
- level of knowledge of existing advocacy and awareness raising programme of citizens in Edo State, following up on the study by Obarisiagbon and Ijegbai (2019) in Oredo, Egor and Ikpoba-Okha local government;
- potential impact of the Oba of Benin's pronouncement;
- any potential new trend in trafficking recruitment in Nigeria and particularly in Edo State;
- children as new targets of human trafficking.

The analysis of the research projects equally encourages the INSigHT Action's research team to adopt an ethnographic approach, as planned, to ensure a more effective examination of rehabilitation projects at the micro level.

3.2 Complementary with other ongoing projects

The INSigHT Action focuses on territories crossed by the human trafficking routes included in the CAMM between Nigeria and Italy/Europe in conjunction with the internal EU route between Italy and Sweden. Besides contributing to the improvement of the prevention/protection and rehabilitation systems in Italy and Nigeria (with some insights in the Swedish systems), it intends to provide a comprehensive understanding of two relevant emerging phenomena: i) the secondary movements from Italy to Sweden of Nigerian female children victims of trafficking and ii) the connections between human trafficking and the involvement of Nigerian males in activities such as begging and drug dealing in the public spaces of targeted cities in Italy.

To this end, the Action proposes the adoption of an experimental and innovative approach, characterized by the use of ethnographic action-research and participative methods not only to inform/train local policymakers, law enforcements and key stakeholders on the challenges connected with human trafficking (i.e. promoting evidence-based policies and practices), but also to co-design efficient strategies to better deal with the phenomenon.

Several EU and non-EU projects have addressed human trafficking in general and from Nigeria in particular. The next paragraphs will explain how the INSigHT Action builds upon recent and ongoing projects and how it can complement some of the ongoing ones.

3.2.1 Awareness Raising

The awareness raising activities by NWA (Activities 4.1, 4.2, 4.3) will complement the ongoing activities carried out by another Action co-applicant, Pathfinders, particularly as far as reaching out to victims and potential victims beyond school contexts are concerned, as well as with reference to activities in Lagos – as awareness raising activities, by Pathfinders but also by other organisations, have mostly concentrated in Edo State. Edo State has been the focus of other awareness raising activities by the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute in collaboration with UNODC, but following the Oba of Benin's order to revoke all curses placed on victims of trafficking, there is a need for strengthening awareness raising activities in Lagos (and other parts of Nigeria too), which is an increasingly target area for traffickers to recruit women and girls for trafficking.

Complementarity on awareness raising has been identified with the project 'Aware Migrants project'. Part of the INSigHT Action's awareness raising activities (4.1, 4.2, 4.3) are planned to take place in Lagos, one of the target locations of the Aware Migrants project. Hence synergies could be developed in order to share experiences and reflect on how awareness raising materials can be shared and improved. NWA activities also include the opening of a Helpdesk (activity 4.1) to be operated on a regular basis in Lagos and targeted specifically to victim returnees in order to ensure constant support over time. It will also create an opportunity to monitor the effectiveness of this and other awareness raising activities on the territory (and not only those of the INSigHT Action). Furthermore, NWA will carry out awareness training for teachers (activity 4.2) in Lagos: this will allow not only for their involvement, as the Aware Migrants project envisages, but also for their empowerment, and for the improvement of the effectiveness of their intervention in school contexts. Finally, the itinerant awareness raising campaign (activity 4.3) will be specifically focussed on women and children and will adopt specific children- and women-sensitive tools and instruments accordingly, while the Aware Migrants project is targeted to both male and female migrants aged 18-35. Additionally, the campaign will travel through hard-to-reach places, including streets and community centres outside urban centres, which are not specifically targeted by the Aware Migrants project.

Further complementarity on awareness raising is evident with respect to the 'Action Against Trafficking in Persons and Smuggling of Migrants in Nigeria' (TIPSOM) project. In particular, the INSigHT Action aims to further reach hard to reach areas outside the urban centres. TIPSOM similarly targets "new areas in source states".

3.2.2 Capacity Building for Law Enforcement

Ongoing training for police forces in Italy has so far targeted senior police officers, including the Euromed Police IV Project and as part of the recent UNHCR anti-trafficking training for police officers in Italy. The trainings proposed by the INSigHT Action will complement previous trainings by targeting law enforcement officers across ranks in Nigeria (Activity 3.5), on the one hand, and junior law enforcement officers, particularly local police forces, in Italy, on the other (Activity 3.3.). The latter have not been the target of any specific anti-trafficking training so far.

Complementarity on the training of (government officials and) law enforcement officers has been identified with the project 'Appui à la Lutte contre la Traite des personnes dans les pays du Golfe de Guinée' by Expertise France. This project aims at consolidating the operational capacities of anti-trafficking stakeholders, including those of ministries and of the highest ranks of law enforcement. The Action envisages some complementarity in the training of senior officers, and senior officers to train junior officers in turn: while trainings for these stakeholders have been carried out, the content of the training organised by the INSigHT Action will, among other things, focus on transnational cooperation and bring together Italian and Nigerian stakeholders, providing an opportunity to share practices.

Synergies can be activated with the TIPSOM Project, which specifically aims to improve capacity in terms of investigation and intelligence sharing. The INSigHT Action trainings will also build on the 'Anti-trafficking Training for Border Guards' package and the 'VEGA Children handbook', developed by FRONTEX in 2012 and 2015. These tools are specifically designed to train European border and coast guards and can provide useful inputs for training law enforcement officers with other roles, both in Italy and Nigeria.

3.2.3 Capacity Building for Rehabilitation

The participative workshop for key rehabilitation stakeholders in Nigeria (Activity 4.2) will strengthen existing prevention and protection actions carried out by Pathfinders and the N.A.Ve, by focusing on scarcely explored aspects, including first and foremost the fostering of integrated approaches, in Italy, and rehabilitation, in Nigeria.

Investments in rehabilitation projects have been made also by the EU Emergency Trust Fund for Africa, but these have been mainly located in the States of Yobe, Gombe, Borno and Adamawa and have focussed on improving access to basic services and enhanced livelihood, with less attention devoted to the development of improved individualised paths for victims. Complementarity on rehabilitation has been identified with the project 'EU-IOM Initiative on protection and reintegration'. Cooperation for the INSigHT action with IOM will be facilitated, as there are already ongoing collaborations between IOM and NWA.

Synergies will be developed with projects, such as TIPSOM, and rehabilitation services across Edo State. This will be done by inviting them to the participative workshop on rehabilitation that PJI will organise. This will provide useful insights on the experience of stakeholders and service providers and on their approach to victims.

3.3 Recommendations for the re-gearing of the INSight Action

Awareness Raising

Ensure the awareness raising activities in Lagos focus on areas/districts that are uncovered (i.e. Ipaja, Badagry, Oyingbo, Owode-Apa, Seme, Epe, Lagos Island, Ikeja, Ikorodu);

Learn from the experience of previous projects to ensure an adequate communication (ie. involvement of peer-educators, reaching out to more remote hard-to-reach areas);

Facilitate the involvement of traditional religious leaders (and, where possible) trade unions;

Consider whether awareness raising activities in secondary and tertiary schools in Lagos are still relevant and consider potential for awareness raising in primary schools;

Engage with the PATIM network to ensure coordination with on-going awareness raising activities, as well as wider promotion and dissemination of the INSight activities;

Consider potential collaborations with MD4 for the production of awareness raising videos;

Try to involve female returnees in awareness raising activities, by ensuring their early involvement since the planning of activities;

Ensure a constant collaboration between the Nigerian researcher of the INSight Team and Pathfinders for the benefit of reciprocal activities;

Re-gear part of awareness raising activities to target local authorities in Lagos;

Revise the communication strategy for each awareness raising activity to ensure it is adequate to the specific target it addresses, particularly female children;

Capacity Building for Rehabilitation

Ensure stakeholders' needs are addressed and concrete incentives are provided to them to ensure extensive participation and maximise the effectiveness of the workshop;

Involve Nigerian institutions as much as possible

Capacity Building for Law Enforcement

Make contacts with the leaders of relevant on-going projects in Edo State to allow for coordination and, where possible, collaboration, particularly as far as capacity building with focus on children- and women-sensitive approaches are concerned;

Ensure the methodology of the capacity building involves both “training the trainers” and exchanges of experiences and knowledge between Italian and Nigerian (and possibly Swedish) law enforcement officers;

Re-gear the content of capacity building to ensure a strong focus on transnational cooperation at its core – consider asking for the collaboration of Rosen and EUROP to identify experts both in Africa and Europe/Italy – and to include the following topics: identification/recognition of indicators of human trafficking (learn from the Blue Campaign), coordination among law enforcement officers, particularly as far as investigations as concerned.

Research

Ensure lessons are learnt from research projects addressing the anti-trafficking work (rehabilitation but not only) carried out by agencies and NGOs in Nigeria and particularly in Edo State;

Ensure a focus is kept on the specific experience of female returnees with 18 years of age or less;

Ensure the research is policy-relevant and provides a concrete opportunity for reflections on the current state of rehabilitation services;

Seek partnership with existing research groups in Edo State and Lagos;

Re-gear/re-plan research activities to ensure contacts with returnees are built and nurtured over time, not just created for the purpose of the interview, to ensure their full involvement in the research;

Insist on collecting more detailed information about the ETAHT Research Workshop and research work undertaken by NAPTIP and re-gear the focus of the research is relevant.
